

Garth McLean

Yoga and Multiple Sclerosis

About Garth

Garth McLean, an Intermediate Junior III Iyengar Yoga teacher, will be teaching a workshop on managing Multiple Sclerosis with Iyengar Yoga.

Diagnosed with MS in 1996, Garth has successfully managed the condition for over 15 years with a disciplined yoga practice based on the guidance of BKS Iyengar and family. Garth's determination and daily practice have played an integral role in keeping his MS symptoms in remission. This has motivated Garth to share his experience with others with MS and their teachers. He has served as a guest teacher at the 2009 France Iyengar Yoga Teachers' Convention in Sommierres, France and in 2011 at the Spain Iyengar Yoga Teachers' Seminar.

About the Workshop

During the two day workshop, Garth aims to guide those affected by MS who already attend classes, as well as open up the possibilities of Iyengar Yoga to those who have limited or no prior experience. (All workshops open to all. Saturday is recommended for new students to yoga).

The aim of these sessions is to offer students an experience and an understanding of ways in which Yoga can help to alleviate many of the common symptoms of MS.

The workshop will also be of tremendous benefit for regular students or teachers of Iyengar Yoga who are interested in learning more about how to manage MS and other similar conditions which create symptoms such as fatigue, spasticity, numbness and unsteadiness, amongst others.
